ROBIN MAZUMDER, B.Sc, M.Sc OT

Robin Mazumder is a doctoral candidate in cognitive neuroscience at the University of Waterloo, where he is studying the psychological impacts of urban design. Using sophisticated wearable technology and immersive virtual reality, he examines how people experience cities. His interest is inspired by his love for cities as well as his front line experience working as a mental health occupational therapist. Robin's research is funded by the Vanier Canada Graduate Scholarship, Canada's most prestigious doctoral award.

Always striving for a healthier, happier, and more inclusive city, Robin is also a passionate community builder. His advocacy and research has been featured in numerous outlets including the BBC, Vice Magazine, CBC, Canadian Geographic, Canadian Cycling Magazine, University of Toronto Magazine and University Affairs. Avenue Magazine named him one of Edmonton's Top 40 under 40 in 2014.

JILL OFFICER, RBC OLYMPIAN

Growing up as part of a curling family, Winnipeg-born RBC Olympian Jill Officer started curling at the age of 10 and by age 17, she had won her first provincial championship. Today, Jill is a ten-time Provincial Champion, six-time Canadian Scotties Tournament of Hearts Champion and a four-time World Medallist including gold in 2008 & 2018, silver in 2015, and bronze in 2010. Jill and her team skipped by Jennifer Jones, represented Canada at the 2014 Sochi Olympic Winter Games, where they captured Olympic Gold and were the first ever team to go undefeated in Women's Olympic Curling.

Jill has been on the RBC Olympian program for 8 years, and is a wonderful Community Ambassador for RBC.
